

The Study Center Gerzensee, Foundation of the Swiss National Bank, trains central bankers from around the world and doctoral students mainly from Swiss universities. It also organizes international academic conferences (e.g., with the Journal of Monetary Economics). Renown, international scholars as well as local faculty teach the courses.

The Study Center is seeking to recruit a

Lecturer (non-tenure track, joint appointment).

The successful candidate is expected to contribute to the teaching of central bankers' and introductory doctoral courses, to conduct high quality academic research and to contribute to the Center's overall academic environment. The language of instruction is English.

The position is for three years, renewable for three more years, and involves a 50% appointment. The Study Center encourages a joint appointment with the University of Bern or another academic institution. The University of Bern is seeking to recruit a Post Doc with research interests in international macroeconomics and monetary economics (50%).

A PhD in economics, a commitment to high quality research in international macroeconomics, monetary economics or related fields, and excellent teaching skills are required for this position. The Study Center offers a low teaching load, competitive remuneration, and excellent research facilities. The anticipated starting date for the position is September 2015.

Candidates should submit a cover letter together with a CV, job market paper, teaching evaluations (if available) and 2-3 reference letters through EconJobMarket.org. Candidates submitting their materials by November 30, 2014, will be given immediate attention but applications will be accepted until the position has been filled. Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted. Interviews will be conducted at the ASSA meetings in Boston or in Gerzensee.
